Poverty Kentucky New Report by KYA

Kentucky Youth Advocates (KYA) released an advocacy and resource guide about poverty in Kentucky today. The report provides information about how poverty is determined, whom it affects, and where additional information can be found.

According to Rick Graycarek, Senior Analyst at KYA, "If you are looking for detailed information about poverty in Kentucky and learning more about poverty in general, then this report is for you."

Journalists, grant writers, policy-makers, non-profit organizations, and businesses will find this report invaluable.

Amy Turner from Louisville Legal Aid said of the report, "A great job and something that will be useful to me in my work!"

Quick references to poverty and income data by county are included in this report. In addition, this report describes in an easy-to-read manner the basic principles of poverty.

The report is designed to provide the reader with regular poverty updates. On an on-going basis KYA will provide you with the latest poverty information so you can update your copy of the report.

This report is available on KYA's website: www.kyyouth.org or by contacting Kathleen Hoye.
